Mr. Feldhaus provided a handout of the programs and services available in Tippecanoe County and the also the twelve county Region 4 area. From July, 2013 through June 30, 2014, 7,200 Tippecanoe County residents were served through the WorkOne system. The cost for the services provided over that time period total approximately $1.5 million.

Advancing Manufacturing began in March, 2012 to target service delivery to the manufacturing sector. Applicants selected for this initiative receive training that includes a certified production technician credential. The program is 140 hour academic program compressed into a 90 day period. Approximately 300 people have enrolled, 225 have passed and received the certification; 75% of the graduates are now employed in the manufacturing sector. The average earnings at the entry level position is $14.33 per hour. The expenses to date for the program are around $750,000; half of the expenses are funded from the Regional Workforce Board, half from local governments such as Tippecanoe County, White County, the City of Lafayette, and grants through Foundations such as Duke Energy and Alcoa. The key to the success comes from Ivy Tech where the training is provided.

Youth Services Team Leader Provo shared a success story letter from a local participant of the Jobs for Americas Graduates (JAG) program. The Tippecanoe County JAG program is located at Jefferson High School.
